

AUSTRIANS PAY HEAVILY FOR ADVANCE

OVER 20,000 MEN LOST IN OFFEN-SIVE AGAINST ITALIANS AC-CORDING TO STATEMENT.
MANY DIVISIONS LOST
EFFECTIVENESS.

FIND BODY OF FLYER

Captain Mercera, Ace of Italian Flying Corp Who Fell Behind Austrian Line Found When Italians Advance.

Paris, June 25.—Austrian losses total 200,000 men according to the Se-colo of Milan. Certain enemy divisions lost two-thirds of their effectiveness. A dispatch to the Milan Turin says the rout of the Austrians is complete and that the Piave
has carried away many Austrian dead. Italian cavalry
it is added has been beyond
the eastern bank of the river.

London.—An official statement on aerial operations issued by the war office today said: "Austen carried out a series of attacks against the Monte-Sablonz station on Sunday. On Monday, factories at Saarbrücken siding at Dillingen, and factories at Metz Sablonz were bombed."

Many Prisoners Taken.
Washington.—A dispatch to the Italian press from Rome today confirmed the announcement yesterday that prisoners taken by the Italians in the fighting of the Piave numbered 45,000. This includes some twelve or fifteen thousand captured last week before the Austrian offensive was turned into a rout.

Boysen German.
Paris.—A dispatch from Rome requested to join in British marines in a bayonet of Germany in a letter written to the Mail by Joseph H.
Wilson, leader of the seamen of Great Britain.

It has been decided to exclude all
Germans from crews and to carry no German goods. "The British action is in retaliation for the shameful assassination of 15,000 non-militant seamen."

Retreat Continues.
The Austrian retreat across the Piave continued in the greatest disorder under the immediate fire of the allied artillery according to news received this morning. British guns are doing heavy encounter in this sector.
Hundreds of the enemy, the report states, were drowned into the swollen river which was the Austrian line.

General Badoglio, chief of staff to General Diaz, has been promoted by the king to the rank of army coman-der as an expression of the king's satisfaction with the present operation. General Badoglio will remain in his present position.

Extent of Known.
London, June 25.—The extent to which the Italian pursuit of the Austrians across the Piave developed is not known here and no detailed report has been received. A statement issued in London yesterday that the Austrians had taken 45,000 prisoners, is said by the morning newspapers to be confirmed by the Italian press.

The same correspondent quotes the dispatch as saying the troops of Archduke Joseph and General Wurm are virtually surrounded and must surrender or be annihilated.

London activity was displayed
during last night by the German artillery in the region east of Amiens between Villers Bretonneux and Moerbaert, count says today. The report states that there was some artillery activity also in other sectors. Raiding operations in Artois region resulted in the capture of prisoners by the British.

German Attacks.
Paris.—The Germans last night attacked the new French position in the region of Decourt, north of the Aisne.
An official statement from the war office today, in surprise attacks in woe and in Lorraine the French captured twenty prisoners.

Will Celebrate 4th.
Paris, June 25.—The much bombarded city of Nancy will celebrate the Fourth of July. The municipal authorities have decided to observe the day as a day of victory.

Rome, June 25.—In announcing to his victorious army the repulse of the Austrians, General Diaz, the Italian commander-in-chief, has stated that the present is confined to local action. He calls upon the army to be prepared for new trials. In an order of the day to his officers and men, General Diaz says:

"The enemy, who with furious impetuosity used all means to penetrate our territory, has been repulsed, his bombs broken, his all command,
of soldiers and all sailors.

"The country understood at once the barrier stood up to your heroic pursuit of immortal vigor. Our people and our allies who have by so many glorious representatives shown their appreciation of our success. The great battle for the time being reduced to local action."

Representatives Of U. S. And Germany May Meet At Early Date

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, June 25.—Germany has been asked, through a Spanish diplomatic channel, to send representatives to Bern, Switzerland, to meet American representatives there, August 5th, to discuss maintenance,
treatment and exchange of prisoners.
In response to a proposal from the state department the German government recently signified its agreement
in principle to such a conference.

The United States also has asked the Germans to send a Swiss commission to visit German prison camps to determine what American prisoners may be classed as invalids and released for internment in Switzerland.
Reciprocal privileges are promised.

Fighting for Right.
"The army has deserved well of the country. We are sure of our right and of the holiness of the cause we are defending. New trials which undoubtedly await us will again show
the enemy Italy has lost none of her faith or strength."

"For Italy, for kings, for civilization we lay us persevere in our sacred duty."

American Advances.
Washington.—Further American
advances and the capture of five machine guns and other material in the region of Chateau Thierry were reported today by General Pershing in his communique of yesterday. A German counter attack at Torcy was repulsed with heavy loss. Several American soldiers are missing after a raid
in Lorraine.

Beyond the Piave.—
The Austrian army again are beyond the Piave and the river line once more bars the enemy from the Verdun plains. The crucial battle between the two armies was fought to the river but the Italians at points have occupied strong bridge heads on the eastern bank.

Victory Is Determined.
The thorough Italian victory has been not yet clear, as every hour brings reports of increasing Austrian losses. Many thousands of the invaders were killed when they attempt to regain the eastern bank of the river, and the latest announcement from General Diaz placed the number of prisoners alone at 45,000.

One report placed the Austrian casualties at 200,000 men. In addition the enemy lost large stores of ammunition and supplies and machine guns.

Apparently the sudden torrent
of the Piave which played havoc with the Austrian communication, fell quickly as it rose and the river began to dry when the Austrian retreat began. This enabled the enemy to get many of its troops across, otherwise his losses would have been even greater.

Blames Weather.— Hanna blames the weather and the high water in the river for the retreat and gives no credit to the stout Italian resistance which held the enemy on the eastern bank. It says the order to withdraw was given last Thursday, and leaves the impression the retreat was carried out unobserved by the Italians.

It has been reported that Baron Burian, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, told the German government that he was resigning. The report follows the dual monarchy if an Austrian attack which Germany insisted upon, was repulsed.

INTERNAL TROUBLES.—There have been no reports that the disorder and unrest within the empire have ceased. In fact, Italian revolutionary forces sent intelligence as to the state of affairs in Austria.

If the Austrian offensive was expected by the German command reliance was placed on the fact that the Teuton strategists have had a bitter disappointment. Austria probably will be unable to take up a new forward movement of the line for a few days at least. In fact, the Piave front appears to be stronger now than at the beginning of the battle.

MAY ATTACK AGAIN.—Operations on the mountain front are still at a standstill, but Emperor Charles still desires to push his offensive against Italy. The next attack may come from this front unless the Austrians change their plan of action.
The plan of which there are no indications at present.

ANOTHER OFFENSIVE.—Premier Lloyd George has told the British house of commons that another giant effort is coming within a few days, possibly within a few hours. The British and French troops on the Flanders battlefield have carried out local operations successfully on the plateau north of the East of Soissons and along the Aisne the French improved their position and captured 176 prisoners.

AMERICAN WOOD.—In local action in the Aisne, northwest of Chateau Thierry, American troops have completed the capture of the wood by clearing the Germans from the northern position. Some prisoners and five machine guns were taken.

In Alsace several Americans are missing as a result of enemy raids.
There is no confirmation of the Berlin report that forty French and American prisoners were captured in a raid on the Lunerville front.

BRAVE AMBULANCE
DRIVER'S THRILLING
DRIVE TO PARIS

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

New York, June 25.—With five wounded American soldiers and as many children, refugees as could be squeezed into his motortruck, Karl S.
Cate, formerly rector of All Saints Episcopal Church, of Providence, R.
I., and now a Y. M. C. A. worker, drove to Paris from a point in the line where the Germans had broken through, never resting in forty-eight hours, it was announced in a cablegram received recently by the Y. M.
C. A. War Council.

To make room for his injured
and helpless passengers, Mr. Cate dropped his motortruck of a stock of supplies, including cigarettes, consisting of American cookies, canned goods, chocolate, gum and candy. Aban-

FRENCH NEWSPAPERS CLAIM BIG VICTORY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, June 25.—French newspapers continue to proclaim the Italian victory. Hope is expressed that General Diaz profiting by the demoralization of the army will not confine his fighting to local actions but strike out boldly to an offensive and transform the Austrian retreat into a decisive victory.

Several newspapers wonder whether the Germans will rush help to the Austrians by transferring forces from the eastern front. L'Homme Libre believes that such action is scarcely probable as Emperor William and Von Hindenburg are convinced they can not obtain a decision except on the front from Switzerland to the sea.

Nip an Attempt to Smuggle Munitions Into Irish Capital

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London.—The seizure of 40,000
rounds of ammunition in the Smith field market in Dublin yesterday is expected to have development according to a correspondent of the Daily Mail who says the seizure was an incident in an attempt to smuggle arms and ammunition to Ireland on a large scale.

The first discovery of the affair
seems to have been made by the police at Belfast, where a ship whose name is not disclosed, arrived at the latter part of last week bringing a miscellaneous cargo among which contraband was cleverly distributed.
The contraband goods were consigned to various parts of the country. An investigation is proceeding to discover how much reached its destination. It is understood that in addition to the seizure at Dublin, 5,000 cartridges were found in Belfast and other parts of the country. The consignment is said to be a brother of one of the interned Sinn Feiners.

WARNED AGAINST A SEPARATE HUN PEACE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tokio, May 25.—Dr. Inazo Nitobe, a well-known Japanese educator and author, who went to the United States some years ago of secretary, has warned his fellow countrymen against making a separate peace with Germany, and told them that in the present world crisis there should be very careful to the nature of criticism
they may indulge in about the war.
In an article written for a commercial magazine, he points out that Japan
is now the cynosure of the powers, and expresses regret that, both before and during the war, some bitter criticism has been made by some publicists regarding the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

Setting aside the question as to how much advantage the alliance has brought Japan, Dr. Nitobe thinks the present situation is not the right occasion for discussing its possible demerits. In his opinion, it was scarcely an attitude worthy of a nation which prides itself on being most gentlemenly to bring this matter up for discussion at a time when Great Britain is confronted with a serious crisis.

"It is alleged that the opinion pre-valms among a section of Japanese business men in favor of Japan's conclusion of a separate peace with Germany, following Russia's example.
It seems that the advocates of this extraordinary course of action hold that Japan can derive far greater commercial benefits than at present by converting herself into a neutral country, and by trading with both parties of the belligerents."

"Viewed purely from an arithmetical standpoint, the theory may contain certain truths, but the world situation has taken such a turn that all neutral countries are not obliged to take sides in the present struggle. In days like these, can it be possible that a country upholds its national dignity long by assuming an equivocal attitude?"

It is certainly not the way to add to the national strength and dignity for Japan to run with the hare and hunt with the hounds. For my part,
I believe in the old Japanese motto
"What Japan sows she will be called upon to reap."

visions for the table will be grown on the farm near by.

The Kohler plant employs 1,200

Kohler has encouraged all men to take out citizenship papers. Each year at the opening of court free automobiles decorated with American flags have carried men to and from the court house.

The "Scraps of Paper" that will Help Win the War

Smother the Kaiser with War Savings Stamps

Sacred treaties are called by the Kaiser mere "scraps of paper." His words are an example of the "Kultur" of the Huns who commit unspeakable crimes against innocent women and children—the "Kultur" that America is fighting to remove forever from the world.

We are in the fight to win—our soldiers must "carry on"—those at home must back up our boys to the limit.

PREPARATION.

When Uncle Sam called for troops to prepare for actual war across the water, he took the entire Wisconsin National Guard organization. Six regiments of infantry, company of cavalry and batteries of artillery. As these men were called to service, there was a protection for the industries and the docks and the manufacturing plants of the state against any interference by labor difficulties stirred up by alien enemies or disloyal citizens. When they left the state immediately organized what is now known as the Wisconsin State Guard.

Janesville is represented in this new organization for peace, this protective association against uprisings of aliens or I. W. W.'s, or any other disturbances that might occur, in Company G of the 8th Reg. Inf. The personnel of this company is made up of the leading citizens of the community and they have drilled honestly and faithfully since its organization last September and are ready to meet any emergency. By their prompt attendance at drill, their attention to orders and their interest in the instruction they have evidenced their intention of doing their share at home and taking the place of the national guardsmen called into service.

Many of the members of the company are men employed by factories, banks and stores and various lines of industry. These men have given of their own time to perfect themselves in drill. They are ready for service when needed. The state has clothed them, equipped them, given them an armory to drill in, and the peace and tranquility of the community in which they live speaks well for the prestige they hold. Now comes the order for a state camp for further and more prominent instruction. The state will furnish the railway transportation, the food at camp, the tents, and the tools and blankets and equipment needed, but they can not pay the men for the time they give to learn what is essential.

It is now up to the employers of labor whose employees are enlisted in the various companies to pay the men full time for the seven days they will be absent. If not these men can not afford to go. The state council of defense urges the manufacturers and employees of labor to aid in this work of education and it is to be hoped every community, particularly Janesville, will do their share. It is a step in preparation for the future.

AMERICA UBER ALLES.

Janesville school authorities decided that the German language should not be taught in the high school. Various parochial schools, where German has been taught since the organization of the church, have decided likewise and now we are getting back to the idea that ex-Governor Hoard taught for and was defeated by years ago, America for Americans. The American language for the people of this continent. If it had come twenty-five years earlier, in Wisconsin the state would have been better off. No finger of accusation could have been cast upon it even if its representatives in congress failed to do their duty as men and loyal citizens. But no, the Bennett school law, the log cabin with the American flag on it, the button of the Hoard campaign, went down because the Milwaukee Germans decided that George W. Peck was a better citizen and would make a better governor than the man who preached the doctrine of America for Americans, and demanded that the English language be taught in every school in the state.

Ex-Governor Hoard is still alive. He has lived to see his policy that of the nation, endorsed by all but men who fail in the test of loyalty. The study of a foreign language is not essential and should not be required. It may be voluntary in many institutions but it should not be required. If we follow the ideals of some of the dogmatists we should create chaos in Japanese, in Chinese, compel students to study Italian and Spanish and perhaps even go further and make French the conversation of the polite world.

But now Ex-Governor Hoard can go to his final resting place knowing that if the state of Wisconsin had listened to his policy the present discussion as to its loyalty would never have arisen and that an eastern publication would not have been permitted to publish a statement that the state gave a bonus for the teaching of the German language by paying the taxpayers' money to schools where it was exclusively taught.

The Janesville school authorities and the authorities in every other community that eliminate German from the school courses are to be congratulated even though members of the school board may be of German birth and parentage. Madison, the capital city of the state, unfortunately has one or two such members, and with their Turn Verein and their German dogma, they give a black eye to the loyalty pretensions of the rest of the state.

BUTTING TRAINS.

One of the most frequent automobile accidents occurs at railroad crossings, when the motorist attempts to pass in front of a swiftly moving train. In the days before automobiles, people used to get killed in the same way when driving horses. Sensible persons learned that a train at fifty miles an hour covers an astonishing amount of space in ten seconds. But when automobiles came along, and were themselves able to cover a good deal of ground in ten seconds, many people lost their sporting blood. The average motorist dislikes to slow up. If a train is seen some distance away, he takes the chance where he wouldn't with a horse. But there is a lot of difference between fifty and twenty miles an hour, as a great many motorists find out though they do not live long enough to reflect on their experience.

At many railroad crossings the trains come from behind trees, buildings, or cuts in the line, so that they can not be seen. The modern locomotive moves pretty noiselessly, unless pulling up a grade. Its ordinary sound would not be heard in an automobile above the noise the motor makes.

There is an obligation upon locomotive engineers approaching a crossing where the truck is not clearly visible from both ends of the road, to blow their whistles several times, so to give a good warning of their approach. If the truck at a railroad crossing is not clearly visible in both directions, and if it is not protected by any gate or flagman, it is much wiser for the automobile party to stop and listen. It will take but half a moment, and they can easily make up that loss of valuable time. Automobiles never have been able to butt railroad trains off the track, though they continue trying it with regrettable persistence.

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

LIEUT. JOHN GREENE.

The records show First Lieutenant John Newport Greene to be the first man to receive the new American decoration for valor in battle. Greene received the Military Cross as it is called. His home is in Staunton, Va. His parents are of English birth. His family states that Admiral Reynolds of the British navy was one of his great-grandfathers. But Greene's tendencies didn't lean toward the navy. Back in January of last year he went to France and joined the Norton Charles field ambulance service. He served with that organization for six months. Then in September he received a commission as second lieutenant in the field artillery of the U. S. R. He received six days' training in an artillery school and then got a chance to go to the front. In December General Pershing recommended forty-seven men for promotion and Greene was one of the forty-seven. He received a first lieutenant's commission.

Then came his big chance. On March 1st this year he was on duty in a dugout near Toul. A hand grenade struck him in the leg and a few seconds later one of the enemy called upon him to surrender. Greene's reply was to grab his pistol and shoot the German. Then Greene drove the rest of the German party away with the pistol. He was given the Croix de Guerre and later the American honor.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

HE HAS NOT GONE TO DIE.

He has not gone to die. Though he may fall, And far in Flanders lie; He heard life call, And knowing what it meant— His strength to give For Freedom, on he went That he might live.

Death! There is no such thing For honor's sons, Who brave the thundering And crash of guns And in one mighty hour Dare all for truth; They snatch from Death's grim power Eternal Youth.

Not by some secret plan, Nor spiced of time Does life produce a man Superb, sublime, Not in three-score of years Does manhood glow; More than our gray-beard soers Brave youth may know.

Only the coward dies; Clinging to breath, Fearing to strike or rise, His is a living death. Lost is his soul to truth, Dead is the heart within, Wasted his strength and youth, Shame's grave has shut him in. He went to live one hour.

For truth and right; To rise to manhood's power And test his might. And it beneath that sky He falls for truth, His name shall never die; Life guards his youth.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

BY E. HUGHES

When Frieda Hempel, the coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera House, was married the other day, the papers said: "She was escorted to the altar by a prominent throat specialist."

We are all in perspiration to know whether the groom was attended by a prominent cory doctor.

The subs which came over here had a regular German victory. They did everything except what they were sent to accomplish.

The Sheriff's Watching I love to sit upon the cottage porch Or loiter mid the roses all day long I love to watch the twilight shades appear, And listen to the bullfrog's pleas-and song.

I love to go and sit upon the pier And dangle my small toes in the lake. I love to be twelve miles away from Whilo sweltering millions frazzle, fry and bake.

I love to ride across the placid bay And dandle in somebody's motorboat That is propelled by fragrant gasoline. To pay for which some one else is the goat.

But I cannot do any of these things. I've got to grab the hammer and the saw. For if I'd do the things I'd really love, I'd violate the anti-loafing law.

Weddings have changed a lot this June. The papers used to print columns about the bride's gown. Now they describe the groom's uniform.

Perpetual motion: Buying shoes for a ten-year old kid. In spite of the fact that it's mostly adulterated, the stuff we get to eat tastes better than it ever did before. There's quite a bit of good old American patriotism mixed in it.

Another nonessential occupation, to which we call the attention of a benign government, is that of going down to the station to see who gets the 9:47.

Now that Mr. Taft and Col. Roosevelt have signed a separate peace without the annexation of indemnities, the skies have cleared considerably. The little fuss over in Europe has been a secondary matter always.

HIGH SCHOOL GIVES ENTERTAINING PLAY

"The Captain of Plymouth" Put On at the Opera House in Professional Style—Audience Pleased.

A really fine entertainment was given last evening at the Myers theatre by the pupils of the high school in the comedy drama, "The Captain of Plymouth." The leading characters were exceptionally well taken, the melodrama was touching, and the whole effect was pleasing and well balanced and would have done credit to professional actors. Ernest Ross does the difficult part of the swash-buckling captain of Plymouth with a dash and snap which are most effective. His scene when pursued by the Indian warriors and shot, and his death scene, were cleverly done. It was I. J. who were cleverly done. Miriam Dicker as Katonka, the Indian princess, from one of the first showed the only sweetness of the matter with good effect. Roy Keller as John Alder has a good voice, and his song with Priscilla, "Love Thy Neighbor," is well sung. He also sang with Priscilla, "Love Thy Neighbor," which was very effective. "Friendship's Call," Priscilla, as given by Owen Johnson, is a girlish, likable character, and is a splendid effect. Her scene, although not strong, is sweet and true.

Robert Lane as Elder Brewster, has a fine presence, and sings his lines with a beautiful voice. His song, "The Wait of the Prophet," was rendered with splendid effect, his voice filling the house. He also sang the solo, for the chief of the Indians, which was well done.

The wealth clown, Erasmus, was personated by Margaret Hansen, who brought out the dry humor of the part very nicely. His voice was good, and he looked and acted the part to perfection.

Katherine Hooper as an early American girl, had a quiet little flirtation with Erasmus on the side, and incidentally sang very sweetly. "There's Nothing to Be But That," the solo of the Puritan, which she sang with her, was very good. Jean McNamee, Louise Ford, Constance Cunningham, Virginia Parker, Mildred Smith and Elsie Middleton, all sang and acted with little dainties, with grace and ease.

A chorus of sailor girls added not a little to the general effect. They sang in white sailor suits, with black hats and white sailor hats. They had a song and danced all their own which was well done.

The Indian boys who were dressed in their own costumes, and were very picturesque in make-up, and did a war dance about Erasmus, and Captain Miles when they were captured and led to the waiting Indian. An Indian lullaby song given by eight or ten Indian maidens, was most effective, and the accompanying dance very good. Each boy carried a little paper on his back.

The whole thing made a most pleasing entertainment, worthy of nearly any other play of the kind. The audience was very large, and the play was very well received.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

News has been sent out from the studio that Irene Castle will soon start for France, if she is not already on her way overseas. This bit of news reminds one of several other bits of news about her.

Of course, everyone knows that she is the widow of the late Captain Vernon Castle, who was killed in an airplane accident while serving in the British aviation corps. Everyone knows also that Captain Castle was her dancing partner up until the time of his enlistment. But there are some things that even screen fans do not know. Among them is the fact that stage folk are perhaps the most superstitious of any class of civilized and educated people. Yes indeed, it is all kinds of bad luck to whistle in a star's dressing room, and nobody knows what terrible things will happen if you sit on a round-topped trunk. Besides believing in all of the old superstitions that other folk believe in such as the calamity attending the breaking of a mirror and walking under a ladder, they have all kinds of special superstitions of their own.

One of these is the belief that bad luck will follow a wife who must wear a mourning bonnet in some character. Curiously enough in "The First Lady," Irene Castle, in the leading character, was called upon to wear a garb of deep mourning, and was but a month after the filming of this picture that Captain Castle was killed.

Mrs. Castle, however, claims that she is not one bit superstitious. "I am a fatalist, if anything," she claims. It is because of her fatalistic belief that she is so daring in her pictures. She will never resort to a double when called upon to leap from high bluffs into the sea, or to jump from speeding autos, or to do any of the other simple bits of "business" which screen stars of today are called upon to do.

Those who have seen Mrs. Castle on her vaudeville tours will remember her as a very tall, slender, graceful woman with a childlike face. She has soft gray eyes and short brown hair which make her look more childlike than ever. She is but twenty-five years old.

CLARA, HOW COULD YOU? Clara Kimball Young, startled a crowd at Lasky studios the other night by auctioning off her apparel, one at a time, for the benefit of soldiers' families.

Clara's gown was the first article sold. Cecil DeMille, the director, after some spirited bidding, purchased it. Others who accomplished high bids were Elliott Dexter, William S. Hart and Douglas Fairbanks. The last garment, to be put up for sale brought about an exciting contest among DeMille, Fairbanks, Hart and Charlie Chaplin. It finally falling to Charlie for $185.

MAJOR ROOSEVELT, JR., IS CITED FOR BRAVERY With the American Army in France, June 25.—Major Theodore Roosevelt, Jr. has been cited by the general commanding the force to which his unit is attached for conspicuous gallantry in action during the operation connected with the capture and subsequent defense of Cantigny.

Justice Rosenberry Weils, Madison.—The marriage of M. E. Rosenberry, justice of the supreme court, and Mrs. Lois K. Matthews, formerly dean of women at the University of Wisconsin, took place Monday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Walter of Fond du Lac. Next week Justice and Mrs. Rosenberry will take a trip to California and will return to Madison early in the fall.

NOTED COUNSEL TO PROSECUTE O'LEARY, SINN FEINER CHARGED WITH TREASON

Jeremiah A. O'Leary, with hat off, and federal agent.

Two of the ablest lawyers in New York city will act as counsel for the government in prosecuting Jeremiah A. O'Leary, charged with conspiracy to commit espionage and treason. The attorneys are H. Snowden Marshall, former U. S. district attorney, and De Lancey Nicol. O'Leary, Sinn Fein leader, was arrested in Sals, Washington, recently on a chicken ranch, where he had gone after escaping from New York. The above picture was taken just after O'Leary was brought back to New York.

DEFINITE POLICY WILL BE ADOPTED BY BOARD

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Washington, June 25.—A definite policy on the question of the ability of street railway companies to pay increased wages to employees without raising their rate of fare to the public will be adopted by the national war labor board on the basis of facts and arguments presented at public hearings which were begun here today before former president Taft and Frank T. Walsh, joint chairman of the board.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been thinking with a girl for about three years. I have always got along all right with her until a certain thing happened. I have been friends with her for about eight months and she went with my other girl until about two weeks ago. She suddenly stopped coming and asked several other girls for dates, among them my girl. I have never seen her since and she has been telling people that she is going with my girl. I have never seen her since and she has been telling people that she is going with my girl. I have never seen her since and she has been telling people that she is going with my girl.

(1) Do you think my chum treated me right in going with him without asking whether or not we were friends?

(2) Do you think he should have told me he was going to quit? I know I did not make him angry in any way, because the last time he left me he was not angry.

(3) Do you think I did right in asking him for my picture?

(4) What shall I do?

BLUE EYES.

(1) Unless you were engaged to the boy it was not necessary for your girl friend to know the situation before accepting his invitation. It would have been more loyal to you, however, if she had known how much you care. If you are generous minded

(2) Boys never do tell girls when they are going to stop going with them. They usually speak for themselves and they know that the girls will realize the situation after they have stopped calling.

(3) You are all right to ask him for your picture.

(4) Speak to the boy but treat him just as you would any other acquaintance who does not interest you. Do not let him know how much you care. If you are generous minded

HEALTH TALKS

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Sudden Loss of Consciousness. A friend whom you saw last an hour ago, appears to you as if he is dead. Well, of course that is a problem for the doctor to solve. Yet there is no harm in knowing a few things about it.

1. Injury to the head. Skull fracture. Concussion (which is the shock caused by head injury). Hemorrhage in the membranes covering the brain. Fracture of an artery by injury. In the latter case consciousness would perhaps be lost only after an interval of many minutes or even hours after the injury to the head.

2. Apoplexy, cerebral hemorrhage or stroke of paralysis, due to diseased arteries in a person at or beyond middle age. Red face, stertorous or noisy breathing.

3. Epileptic coma, which sometimes develops suddenly in a person afflicted with chronic Bright's disease (which in many ways may be mistaken for "epilepsy" or "stomach trouble" or "neurasthenia" or "run-down condition" or "overwork"). Faintness or on breath.

4. Stupor following an epileptic seizure.

5. Carbon monoxide poisoning (the escaping illuminating gas, from the exhaust of an automobile in an unventilated garage, from the fumes of a gas stove, or from the fumes of a gas lamp) given off by a gas stove or furnace. If there are obstructed or dangerous to highly closed blue. The victim's skin and lips would look blue.

6. Hysteria, in younger persons of either sex. Hysterical blindness, hysterical deafness, and not more trifling as ordinary imaginations.

7. Coma produced by a drug taken intentionally or by mistake—opium, various alkaloids, morphine, alcohol, chloroform.

8. Cerebral embolism, that is, lodgment in a brain artery of a small particle of blood, broken off from a diseased heart valve, or of a bubble of air from a punctured lung, or a globe of fat from a broken bone.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

One should always remember that traveling is the severest test of good breeding; the man who does not for his manner among strangers, people whom he never expects to see again, will not be likely to forget them where.

MISS B. B. would seem better in the end to economize rather in the number of guests to be entertained at your wedding, than in the supper and the cake. It is better to have a perfect as possible to make a wedding memorably beautiful. Since you are soon to be separated by the call of your country, it would be more satisfactory to have, than one day on the center of the table, which will be the bride's table at the wedding breakfast, you should have a wedding cake or a basket of flowers. The wedding cake or a basket of flowers, the wedding cake or a basket of flowers, the wedding cake or a basket of flowers.

Mr. R. B. In entertaining a party, a dinner or a bachelor should secure a mation of his acquaintance to act as chaperon for the affair. This lady will relieve the situation of embarrassment for the girls. If he properly provide such a supper or dinner as would be given anywhere by anyone else.

Household Hints

MENT HINT.

Breakfast: Potato Pancakes, Ham, Coffee, Corn Soup, Mashed Potatoes, Chicken Salad, Oatmeal Bread, Butter, Strawberry Jam, Tea, Rice Pudding, Dinner: Scrambled Eggs, Sweet Pickles, Corn Bread, Cup Custard, Cocoa.

WHAT-TO-SAY.

Potato Pudding—This recipe makes a rich, moist pudding at small expense. Sift one pint whole milk flour, half teaspoon salt and one or two baking soda, and one heaping spoon mixed spices. Add half cup cooking oil, one cup milk, one cup molasses, one cup sugar, and one cup raisins. Mix all well, turn into greased mold, steam two and one-half hours.

Chocolate Cake—One-half cup fat, two-thirds cup sugar, three eggs, one teaspoon salt, one cup milk, one cup syrup, three-fourths cup cocoa, one cup flour, one cup baking powder, one teaspoon cinnamon, two squares chocolate, one teaspoon vanilla.

Cream fat, sugar and egg yolks. Add syrup and mix well. Add alternatingly the liquid, and the dry ingredients sifted together. Add flavoring and melted chocolate. Fold in well beaten egg whites. Bake about one hour in a moderately hot oven.

Potato Pancakes—To make a quart of potatoes add four eggs, one at a time, just enough to make the mixture, the amount will vary owing to the difference in drippings and serve at once.

Barley Biscuits—Barley flour two cups, milk two-thirds cup, fat two tablespoons, salt one-half teaspoon, baking powder four teaspoons. Sift the dry ingredients together, mix in the fat and add the liquid. Roll to about three-fourths inch thick, cut with a cookie cutter and bake in a hot oven.

This makes a very good dough for shortcake also, but improved with more fat and substitute one-fourth rice flour with the barley.

These are even better made as drop biscuits.

Pasty—Barley flour two cups, fat one-third cup, salt one teaspoon, water to make a stiff dough. Combine as for other pastry.

Boston Bread—One cup rye flour, one cup cornmeal, one cup Graham flour, three-fourths teaspoon soda, one teaspoon salt, three-quarters cup molasses, two cups sour milk, one and three-quarters cup sweet milk.

Mix and sift all dry ingredients, add milk and molasses. Stir well; turn into well-greased mold, cover with waxpaper and steam. Never fill mold more than two-thirds full.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To Easily Remove Layers of wall paper from walls and ceiling put one-third part vinegar to two-thirds part warm water and wet the walls with same, using a sponge or soft rag. Paper will absorb the water more quickly and pull off easier.

The Little Mother of Shack 3

"IT IS BETTER SO."

Chapter II.

"Dear Steve," wrote Sally. "You are free. A thousand times you are free. Since that is the main thing and the only thing that counts, why should more be said? Does it matter HOW we came to make the ghastly mistake? Do you need to apologize for not being able to love me? Must I make excuses for failing to win your love? No, I scorn to do it, and I scorn to have you explain."

"Nor shall I lie to the world—our little world that knows us both through and through, and has since babyhood. Shall I try to cloak my humiliation by saying I, and not you, have ended our engagement? Shall I attempt to spare your feelings by saying something every one knows to be untrue? No, Stephen, let's be honest with ourselves and with our friends."

"After all, who cares? We over-estimate people's interest. It will be a nine day's wonder, and then they'll turn to something else. Like war and weddings and birth and death, be done as unobtrusively as possible. Let us have no prolonging of the pain, no ostentatious falsehoods, no 'explanations,' no glorification of ourselves."

"I shall not die of this, although I should like to. I shall suffer, as women always suffer when the man they love does not respond. I am not heroic, nor am I able to snuff my fingers and cry, 'O well, why worry there are other fish in the sea.' I am just an ordinary girl, Steve, whose heart is crushed."

"You say it is for no selfish reason that you ask for your freedom—that there is no other woman. I can almost find it in my heart to wish there were some other woman. There is a certain dignity left to the girl who is supplanted by some one of stronger charm or greater wiles."

But to be declined in this colorless fashion, to have no rival, to flake out simply because one does not sufficiently attract, oh, Steve, it is the most bitter, the most hopeless thing of all.

"There is really little else to say. I cannot bring myself to babble the usual find it out now than later, and that, both of us being young, we'll 'soon forget'."

"It is not true. If we had married I should have kindled your love and kept it burning by sheer devotion. And I shall never forget. So far as I am concerned, life is done. My body will live and I shall move about among people, and after a time I shall enter into things, and talk and even smile."

Steve—oh, my dear—

Tears came suddenly to Sally's burning eyes. She covered her face and strained with all her might to keep her sobs from waking the household. Nervous tremors shook her from head to foot, racked and wrung her.

When the storm passed she still sat huddled over the writing desk, her thick braided hair hanging limp over one shoulder, her body chilled and numb as the night wind blew unheeded through the open window. The candle guttered and went out. Sally lifted her head and looked at it with a wan smile. It seemed symbolical. The light was gone.

But presently the faint gray of dawn pushed in, revealing the tear-blotted letter. Slowly Sally reached out for it, tore it into bits and swept them into the waste basket beside the desk. She picked up the pen and in the cold half-light wrote simply this:

"Steve: It's all right. You are free. It is better so. But if you wish to be kind, do not come. Let us not meet again. Sally." She sealed and stamped it, pulled down the window blind and crept into bed.

Will Hold Meeting: The meeting of the W. C. T. U. which was postponed from last week, will be held on Thursday afternoon at three o'clock at the home of Mrs. O. W. Athon, Highland avenue. Members are requested to bring a flower mission report and special offering bags to be turned into the county treasurer.

SIDE TALKS

BY RUTH CAMERON

The Old Friend Habit.

Much has been said of the worth of old friends.

To all of which, I say an amen. There's nothing like them. And yet, I think one can become too much attached to the old friend habit. It is not well to let old friends usurp the place of new.

I have a friend who has what I call the old friend habit. She has several very fine friends, to whom she is splendidly loyal, which is good. But she seems to feel that loyalty to the old includes an unwillingness to learn to know new people, which is bad.

One day last summer I entertained this friend at my home. I had suggested having other people to meet her. She vetoed it emphatically. "We always enjoy you people so much," she said. "Wouldn't outsiders spoil it?"

She Even Asked Them to Visit Her. By a strange coincidence, the very people whom I had thought of inviting came that week end, not to my home, but to a little Tavern near there. By a still stranger chance there was some misunderstanding about rooms at the Tavern and we naturally took them in. I rather regret the necessity, because of my friend's feelings, but I don't believe we ever had a more successful week-end. The two couples proved very friendly and congenial. My friend found she had several interests in new friends. New friends bring into play new facts in one's personality and in one's mental resources.

Contact with new friends often sends one back in a condition to enjoy the old more.

Loyalty to old friends may enter into the reluctance to make new, but I think that simple inertia often has more to do with it. And that surely ought to be overcome, rather than yielded to.

Old Friends and Old Shoes. One often hears it said that an old friend is like an old shoe. Meaning, I suppose, that one finds the same comfort in both. One should remember that an old shoe is sometimes as comfortable as a new one, and is often as comfortable as a new one. As one grows one never makes a friend quite so readily, and I have even heard it claimed that one makes no new friends after forty.

Heaven forbid, I think I shall have to promise myself to try to make at least one new friend every year until I die.

"Yes, my dear, it is perfectly true, and we are to be married in six weeks. You will like Billy, he is such a dear, gay, good-looking big thing—though he is absurdly young. We are just the same age in years, but twenty-eight in a man! I have moments of feeling convicted of child stealing. Just now I am encouraging him to raise a musk-rat. It's frightfully unbecoming, but it makes him look less like my son. You will come to the wedding, of course. Billy is wild to know you. He is a dear, truly, Laura. And wait until you see some of my clothes! I'm having a—"

Pat.
Dear Aunt Flora:
I dare say you have heard rumors, but I want to tell you myself of my great happiness. I am going to be married on the 27th of next month to Mr. William Courtney Blake, a young lawyer who has already made himself felt here in New York. I hope your health will let you come to the wedding, for Will is so anxious to know you all as soon as possible. I am sure you will like him—he is very strong and upright and manly. After all, it is character that counts, isn't it? We shall begin life very modestly, but, I believe, very happily.
With love to everybody,
Affectionately your niece,
Patricia De Witt.

Arthur:
I am sorry, very sorry, but it is true. I am not going to answer your letter. Some day you will see it differently, and will write me another. Meanwhile I am what I have always been.
Your sincere friend,
P. DeW.

I am not angry, my dear boy—only very much grieved over it all.
Dearest Anna:

I want you to be one of the first to know the beautiful news. Mr. Blake and I are going to be married next month. With your own happiness so very new, you will appreciate what this means to me. You will like Will, he has such delicate perceptions, and is so thoroughly an artist, in spite of being such a thriving young lawyer. I understand now why you would not have a large trousseau, dear Anna. I do not see how a girl can spend this time, of all others, in running to the dressmaker's. I am getting only a few simple things, and am trying to keep my mind and spirit unfogged. You must let me bring Will to see you some evening, and you must promise to sing to him. He is so impatient to hear you. With love,
Devotedly,
Patricia.

Dear Uncle Mark:
I am going to be married—to the Mr. Blake you met one day. He is one of the St. Louis Blakes, and his mother was a Courtney, so you see I am not disgracing the family. We have taken a very decent apartment—it is just three doors from the Van Hornes—and you will always find a warm welcome and a good glass of claret when you are moved to dine with us. You will like Will—he is a violent protectionist, and plays excellent whist.
Affectionately, your niece,
Patricia DeWitt.

Dear Miss Pomeroy:
Your little note was just come. I cannot tell you how much it means to me that Will's friends are pleased—and you especially, his very best friend of all. I am sorry to hear that you are not well, and that you are going away to stay indefinitely. Will will be deeply disappointed not to have you at our wedding. He has talked of you so much that I was looking forward to knowing you better, for my own sake as well as his.
Hoping to see you back soon,
Cordially yours,
Patricia DeWitt.

Dear Jerome:
I have often wondered which of us would write this news to the other. And now, of course, you know that it has happened—or rather, that it is about to happen next month. Do you remember our promise to keep at least our perfect frankness? Well, then, I am offering love under very pleasant conditions, and I am taking it gratefully and gladly. I think we shall make a true success of it. I have put away certain childish things in the railway of illusions, and I like the result better. Give me your blessing, dear Jerome! I am endlessly glad you came out of it friends. You would like Will—he is very simple and generous and big hearted. Come to the wedding if you want to—not otherwise.
Faithfully,
Patricia.

Billy Beloved:

I have written five billion notes, and will not tell another soul. They can wait in the papers. Oh, dear, it is such a bore to pretend to be interested in anyone but you! Who cares whether they know or not—stupid things! Everyone will want to meet you, but we will get out of all we can. There is no one in the world but you and me—and aren't you glad of it?
Coming tonight?
Yours,
P.

This is an invitation to dine with us at seven. I forgot to mention it.

The Daily Novelette

THE END JUSTIFIED THE MEANS.

(Translated from the Russian.)

No one neither man, woman, child or bird, had as lovely a singing voice as Sonia Skivobitz, for her mother said so. Sonia exercised it thoroughly. Every morning before daybreak she was trilling and laughing with the birds outside her window.

When Sonia was engaged by the impresario at the Imperial Opera House, she was delicious with joy. Here was her chance; her great chance to become a world-famous prima-donna. The opera made a great hit and Sonia and her mother were sure Sonia was the one that made it. Sonia sang the part of the deaf and dumb girl in "Nadine."

Sonia and her mother lived in a lovely residence of Bostrovsky Street, and right next door was a lovely residence, now empty. On the day some moving van drove up to the empty house and emptied the goods of Count Gratsky and himself upon the pavement. So the Count moved in.

Count Gratsky was a writer of love letters and desired quiet above all things, because he had to take the place of the lovers in their scenes so he could write about it. Being a cold-hearted man himself, it was a very hard thing for him to write these soft letters.

As usual, as she had done for the past thirteen years, Sonia arose with the chickens and sang with the roosters. She indulged in her early scenes and troubles and tribulations and gurgled. Count knocked on their brass knocker.

"How heavenly is your voice!" said the Count, majestically bowing his head on the doorknob and then hobbling it up again to see the effect it had on Sonia. "Madame, your voice is of such a magnificence that I shall give you some lozenges that I have paid a thousand roubles apiece for—worth their weight in platinum!" And he took from a small box in his inner vest pocket two silver-coated lozenges.

"These are them!" said the Count. "Adieu!"

The next day after the count's visit, Sonia remembered the lozenges and took one. And to this day she remembers the lozenges, for after eating one it was seven months before she recovered even her speaking voice, for the Count's lozenges had nearly dissolved her vocal chords.

And never did Sonia Skivobitz recover her singing voice.

"Ha!" muttered the count, when silence continued to reign in the house next door.

"A-ha!" he sniggered, wickedly to himself.

CENTER

Center, June 24.—Thursday morning June 24, the community was indeed shocked and grieved at the terrible happening at the J. P. Goldsmith home when the deceased, Mrs. Goldsmith was kindling a fire in the range.

She was immediately rushed to Mercy Hospital in Janesville, where all was done that skill could do, but to avail. She suffered untold agony until death relieved her at 3:30 o'clock.

Lucy Pepper Goldsmith was born in the town of Center, Rock County, March 14, 1868. She has spent her entire life here. In the year January 1, 1888, she was united in marriage to John P. Goldsmith. Three children blessed this union, a daughter, Mrs. Alta Zillke of Janesville, a son Earl of Center and another son Paul, who preceded her in death.

Thus was the heavy hand of affliction laid upon a highly respected family and thus was a kind-hearted, noble woman called suddenly to her reward. She was always ready to lend a helping hand to one in need, and those who knew her have but words of praise in her behalf. She was a member of the Footville Christian church from where the funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2:30, conducted by Rev. Worley, reading the last rites and administering words of comfort to those left to mourn. Rev. Worley was assisted by Rev. C. W. Cummings of Janesville.

The song service was rendered by Miss Daisy Spencer and Mrs. Floyd Dohs. The body was then tenderly laid to rest in Bethel Cemetery at Center. Besides the sorrowing husband, son and daughter, and two little granddaughters, she leaves to mourn her passing away three brothers, E. P. Pepper of Amesbury, George Pepper of Neillville, Wis., and J. P. Pepper of Center, besides a host of life-long neighbors and friends, many of whom were her school mates.

time. The writer sadly realizes that from the home, the social circle and the community one has gone who has left many to mourn her departure. "May he who tempers the mind to the short lamb send them the consolation of earth cannot give." Beautiful flowers were in abundance.

Mrs. Emma Fisher of Janesville, came out to attend the funeral of her uncle, the late Leaban Fisher Saturday afternoon, remaining over night at the J. H. Fisher home and attending the funeral of the late Mrs. J. P. Goldsmith Sunday.

All that was mortal of the late Leaban Fisher was tenderly laid to rest Saturday. The G. A. R. comrades of Janesville had charge of the burial. A number of out of town relatives were in attendance among whom were Mrs. Byron Jones, a niece of Chicago, Miss Hattie Dean of Ladysmith, another niece; a nephew S. D. Fisher of Brodhead.

OLD AGE A CRIME!

Some people are young at 60—red cheeks, ruddy and vigorous. Others are old at 40—joints beginning to stiffen up a bit; step beginning to lag and lose its springiness; occasional touches of pain in the back, feet tired without cause, and possibly a twinge of rheumatic pain.

In most cases these are the danger signals to warn you that the kidneys are not promptly doing their work of throwing off the poisons that are always forming in the body. To neglect these natural warnings is a crime against yourself. If you have these symptoms you can find prompt relief in GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil Capsules.

For more than 200 years this has been the recognized remedy for kidney and bladder ailments.

A THRILLING STORY
of the World War for Freedom
LIBERTY WAR MAP
Published by
The Geographical Publishing Co.
FREE WITH THE GAZETTE

The First and Only Map of Its Kind in the World.

With a sudden flash of recognition, and a deep thrill of complete understanding, one looks for the first time at the New Liberty War Map of the World War. What a picture it presents! It provokes first a strange feeling of awe, and almost dread; then a hot wave of patriotism and eager hope sweeps away all other emotions, as the real significance of the symbolism on the map is plainly seen.

This Nation cannot longer exist half slave and half free, said Lincoln, more than fifty years ago, and now we are learning that the same truth applies to the whole world. The new Liberty War Map shows, for the first time, the mighty powers of darkness and tyranny seeking to sweep over and blot out the forces of freedom. It shows, also, bold and bright, pressing hard against the dark menace, on a front 375 miles long, from the North Sea to the Swiss border, the Red, White, and Blue BATTLE LINE OF LIBERTY.

Every day that great battle line in France means more to us. More keenly than ever we want to see it hold and bright, pressing hard against the dark menace, on a front 375 miles long, from the North Sea to the Swiss border, the Red, White, and Blue BATTLE LINE OF LIBERTY.

The Germans are now hurling against that line their most tremendous assault, adding fresh armies from Russia and Austria. The world is waiting, tensely, France, England, and AMERICA are fighting, shoulder to shoulder along that great battle line of Red, White, and Blue, and are saying to the German hordes, "Back! You shall not pass!"

The line twists and bends from town to town, from hill to hill, through field, and valley, and forest, and swamp, through ruin and devastation, through every bend and every salient, every town, and hill, and wood, and river, and railroad, there on the LIBERTY WAR MAP, tells some part of the tragic story of three and a half years past. What will be the story in the fateful year 1918?

See how near the black torrent of "rightfulness" came to Paris, and how far the Battle Line of Liberty pushed it back. But what a little fragment of Belgium is still on the free side of the line! The brave remnant of King Albert's army, one of these days, will push the line forward and drive out the invaders, perhaps with our help. There is there, in that fragment of Belgium, and the Tynes Canal, which was choked again and again with the bodies of men and red with the blood of heroes and heroines.

That deep dent, or salient, in the line near Tynes, pointing straight-- Roulers! How short the distance to that vital spot in the German hold on Belgium. When the Battle Line of Liberty reaches Roulers, the Teuton cloud must be rolled back, the submarine bases at Ostend and Zeebrugge surrendered, and the iron grip on Belgium loosened.

Further along, in France, the line almost touched Cambrai, when the terrific drive of General Byng and his "tanks" recaptured a strip of French soil and rescued thousands of the inhabitants who had been crushed and ravaged by the invaders. But the Red, White, and Blue line has now been forced in again by furious hordes of Teutons. THE LIBERTY WAR MAP shows its new position.

And there is Rheims, shattered by the destroyers, who have laid in ruins so many famous cathedrals. It only that line can be pushed forward before the splendid remnant of Rheims is crushed to a shapeless heap of stones and mortar in history can equal its heroic defense. All the fierce attacks of the Germans and the slaughter of the hundreds of thousands of men have failed to break the Red, White, and Blue line defending Verdun. It still stands, safely this side of the line, the unconquerable fortress of freedom.

Down at the farthest end of the line are the lost provinces of France—Alsace and Lorraine. A small part of Alsace has been reclaimed and is on this side of the line of Liberty. How the heart of our comrades, France, is fixed on that sector of the great line!

And now it is OUR LINE. The very sector, close to the border of Lorraine, has fallen to our lot. During the coming months we shall be turning our eyes and our hearts to it with intense interest and eager questioning. Will our soldiers be able to drive the line farther to the North and East, pushing back the invader and destroyer out of France? Will it be our happy fortune to repay our great debt to France by winning back her long lost provinces and restoring her stolen children?

General Pershing has placed at the disposal of General Poch the entire American army for immediate action in the stupendous battle now raging. Before you read this, they will be in the thick of the fight, driving the enemy back, as we all so ardently hope and pray. Where will they strike? What German territory is nearest?

What ravished cities of France can our boys rescue from the Hun? What river, or canal, or railroad, or mountain range are in our path to help or hinder? With every news dispatch and every home letter from the American Army in the field a flood of such questions will press for answer. We want to know at once. We want to visualize the places and the battles, and we want to be with our boys in spirit, and it will help a lot to be studying that Red, White, and Blue battle line on the new LIBERTY WAR MAP, and to be learning all we can of the country on our side of it, and on the other side.

This map shows twenty-two departments of France, corresponding to states of this country, located in the northeastern part of France and by the direct path of the GERMAN'S UNSUCCESSFUL ADVANCE TO PARIS. Practically all of Belgium, all of Luxembourg, Lorraine and Alsace and a large part both of Germany and Holland are very clearly shown. A DOUBLE RED LINE DE- NOTES BATTLE FRONT AS IT EX- ISTS TODAY. Two red circles show United States Army Bases, while red arrows indicate the portion of battle line which our troops hold. The railroad from our Naval Base at Bordeaux connecting with our Army Base at Toul, which France has turned over to us, and which our Army engineers have completely rehabilitated, is shown. Above map described is an Ad space of 3256 inches, while di- rectly below are two smaller maps, one on the left showing the Italian front, while the one on the right is a map of Eurasia, showing the Russian front, Lapland, Finland, Bolsheviki territory, Ukraine and the Republic of Siberia. The Siberian railroad, connecting Petrograd with Vladivostok, a distance of 4,073 miles, is also shown, while south of Vladivostok is shown the Japanese Empire. On the reverse side of the map is a CO- PLETE INDEX OF OVER 5,000 PLACES NAMES, completely indexing all military roads, railways, fortresses, aerodromes, all cities and villages, rivers, canals, etc. of the Western Front. The index is arranged in alphabetical order, with key num- eral and letter for each entry.

Railroads and Highways are shown, practically complete, on the main map, and the thousands of Western towns, fortresses, hills and other places of military importance are shown with special care to preserve that completeness, convenience, and legibility for which the Geographical Publishing Co.'s maps have always been noted.

It is possible to follow the routes of the Air Raids, which will be increasing rapidly in number and importance as the great new fleets and airplanes now building, go into action.

THE COLORING OF THE LIBERTY WAR MAP is striking graphic and significant. The countries are clearly differentiated and all boundaries are made very plain. In completeness of detail, perfection of engraving, coloring and printing the GAZETTE LIBERTY WAR MAP is unequalled.

WHEN THE BOYS COME HOME, this great LIBERTY WAR MAP will be an endless source of satisfaction as the family gathers around it while the young veteran from France points out all the places which meant so much to him, and traces out the exciting stories he will have to tell, and how this wonderful LIBERTY WAR MAP will help him to tell them, and how to understand and enjoy them.

THE LIBERTY WAR MAP will be a treasured thing in your home to keep in a place of honor and to hand down to the next generation. You will want it, of course.

PLUG EARS OF MUNITION WORKERS

Washington, June 25.—Plugging the ears of workers in munitions factories has been suggested in England as a means of lessening the growing number of accidents arising from efforts to increase speed in production.

"Speed of production inevitably tends to a more proportionate increase of accidents," says the report of an investigator for the Munition Workers' Committee, received here in consular dispatches. "Accidents depend on the main on carelessness in the early hours of the morning, and so the more one can eliminate lack of attention and increase concentration upon work, the more accidents be reduced."

"One wants to judge in all the workers throughout their hours of labor, the same mental outlook is present in the night-shift workers as in the early hours of the morning. These workers have for the most part forgotten the pleasures and excitement indulged in shortly before coming on night shift, and they have only but an unexhilarating breakfast and bed to look forward to."

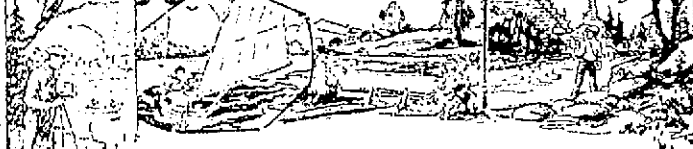

"Such a mental state is impossible of achievement by the day-shift workers, but something in the way of mental calm and equilibrium can be attained by stopping all communication except that relating to the work in hand. If the workers would only sent to it, it would be a good plan to induce temporary deafness by plugging the ears, and so shut out the noise of machinery, which is in itself an important cause of distraction and fatigue."

"Again, if it were practicable, it would be of value to shut out sight of surrounding objects, by wearing the goggles or other machinery from one another by partitions."

"At the fuse factory, when the operatives were working a 12-hour day, the women's accidents were two and a half times more numerous than in the subsequent 10-hour period; but the men's accidents showed no difference. At all the factories inspected into, the night shift workers suffered fewer accidents than the day shift workers—the average defect being 12 per cent. This was due to the night shift workers settling down to a calmer mental state than the day shift workers, and so becoming less careless and inattentive."

"In all of the factories, the accidents increased considerably as the weather grew colder and diminished as it grew warmer."
